

H1N1 Vaccine Distribution
Updated 11-20-09

H1N1 vaccine will be sent from the vaccine distributor directly to medical providers and local health departments. Shipments are expected to be received weekly through December. There are two types of flu vaccine: the flu shot and the nasal spray vaccine. The nasal spray flu vaccine (sometimes called LAIV for Live Attenuated Influenza Vaccine) can be used for healthy individuals 2 – 49 years of age who are not pregnant.

The following table indicates which medical providers have preregistered to receive doses of H1N1 vaccine and whether they have been allocated to receive any shipments. Allocations may have been done recently with doses still to be received in the provider's offices. Flu vaccine distributed to providers is intended for their current patients who are at high risk for complications from H1N1 flu and for health care workers.

The Public Health Department will work with providers to distribute vaccine to their high risk populations. As more doses become available, we plan to hold community and school-based clinics. These clinics will target individuals who do not have the ability to see a medical provider or those whose provider is not receiving vaccine. Once the dates and times have been established we will post the information on our home page.

Please note that pharmacies can only give vaccinations to individuals 18 and older.
